From Black Dress Press : Spinning Jenny: Number 5 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Spinning Jenny: Number 5:

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Finely edited editionBy A CustomerSpinning Jenny just keeps getting better better. While they're only on their fifth issue, the work is fresh, innovative, the editor has already established a strong sense of direction. The sequencing, the mix of poems prose seems just right in number 5. I've seen a lot of litmags come go, but my gut tells me that this one will be around for a while. Other strong new contenders: Fence, Hunger. Stay away from New Yorker or Poetry. Those places have become pits of New Formalist (read "Neo Fascist") conservatism.

Literary anthology featuring new work from Wayne Hogan, Ian Randall Wilson, Ben Miller, Matt Hart, Amanda Schaffer, John Sweet, Christopher Janke, William D. Waltz, Renee Sedliar, David Chirico, Jonathan Thirkield, Matthew Lippman, Michael Morse, A.P. Maddox, John Haner, m loncar, Belinda Kremer, Jeff Hoffman, Caroline Kim, Thaddeus Rutkowski, Ramsay Wise, Ron Reeves, and Michael Peters
